

2003-47

>>> <Numberonekat@aol.com> 12/15/03 09:32PM >>>
Court Rule No.2003-47

Dear Sir:

I can't believe that this country is doing this to it's own people these men and women have worked some even fight for this country. Now that they have Asbestos problems you are now going to tell them sorry you don't have it bad enough to go to court over. Next to being dead how bad is bad enough? Where is the line? My husband used to work in a steel mill and that's where he picked this up at, now you want to say to bad ...No that's not right, it shouldn't be up to government to tell anyone your not sick enough to get compensated. You don't understand when you've had your husband by your side in everything you do and now you have to run to him because a company didn't tell you that this stuff was bad for them the people, that in the future you will not be able to run, to be in the cold, and that the heat in the summer time will bother you. Yes, bother where you have to have Azmacort and albuterol to breath with sometimes..These people do need to be compensated, not the families after the fact. (when the person that had it is dead) . It shouldn't be up to you as government. I feel if a person wants to sue a company for this than so be it, hopefully that person can get some kind of compensation out of it.

Thank you

...Kathy Baumia